Hummingbirds are unique and lovely creatures that awe us with their quickly beating wings and hovering capabilities. I have made it my mission the last few summers to attract hummingbirds to our yard. I finally had great success last year! Here are a few things I learned about welcoming hummingbirds back to Colorado.

It took me several attempts to find the right spot to hang hummingbird feeders. I tried them in the backyard because I thought it would be peaceful and feel safe. I was concerned about cars, people, and dogs passing by our front sidewalk. But in the end, our large shade tree in the front yard turned out to be the best place for them.

1 - Find a spot to hang the feeders where hummingbirds will see them and that also provides a nearby place for them to land and hide in between feedings. Begin putting feeders out in mid-April to welcome hummingbirds back from their southern migration.

2 - Hanging two or three feeders in the same tree can help to attract more birds. Hummingbirds are territorial, so they will defend their food source if it's the only option.

3 - Keep the feeder washed inside and out to attract hummingbirds and to keep them safe from mold or germs. I prefer the simply shaped feeders with little adornment to make the cleaning process easier.

4 - Change out the sugar water at least every week. Hanging a feeder in the shade will keep the liquid from heating up and spoiling too quickly.

5 - Hummingbirds are attracted to the color red. Hanging a red feeder is a good idea and planting red flowers nearby will attract them to the area. Do not use red dye in the sugar water as it can be harmful to a hummingbird.

6 - If you have the problem of attracting bees, move the feeder about three or four feet. The bees will lose track of the feeder, but the hummingbirds will still be able to find it.

HUMMINGBIRD FUN FACTS

3-5" long

weigh 3 grams (roughly the weight of a penny)

Can beat their wings up to 200 beats per second.

It is the only bird that can fly in any direction or remain
suspended in air.

Our large tree created a little haven for hummingbirds to feed, rest, and nest! It was a beautiful sight to see them living near us and even see an incredible little nest not much bigger than a large marshmallow made of down, fibers, and feathers. I loved to step outside and hear their distinctive, high-pitched twitter and the hum or whistle of their wings. To watch them perch or hover around the feeders and chase each other was fascinating.

Syrup Recipe -

Mix 1 part refined white sugar with 4 parts hot water and stir until sugar is dissolved. Let the syrup cool before placing in feeder. Extra syrup can be stored in the refrigerator.

PLANTING CALENDAR

The experts at Tagawa Gardens give us tips and timing for our gardening success

Early April

- Cut back late summer-flowering plants like Russian sage, blue mist spirea, and butterfly bush to encourage lush growth. These plants bloom on this year's growth, and this will encourage new growth.
- Remove all tree wrap around the middle to the end of March to prevent insects and disease.
- Start these seeds indoors: peppers, New Zealand spinach, collards, beets, and eggplant
- Start these seeds outdoors: carrots, kohlrabi, peas, radishes, sage, spinach (not New Zealand), and turnips. Also from plants and roots: Chinese cabbage, parsley, spinach, broccoli, kale, cauliflower, potatoes, onion sets, and asparagus roots.

Mid-April

- Start these seeds indoors: celery, leeks, onions, lima beans, endive, and escarole
- Start these seeds outdoors: parsnip, beet, carrot, endive, escarole, lettuce, pea, parsnip, and turnips. From plants: broccoli, brussels sprouts, cauliflower, collards, and kale.

Late April

- Outdoors: Plant spring bulbs and roots: ixia, lily of the valley, anemone, lilies, freesia, gladiolus, dahlia, canna, and peonies. Plant acclimated perennials.
- When active growth appears on roses, fertilize with a rose food according to the label.
- Prune roses back to appr. 1-2 feet above the ground or to live wood. Don't prune climbers except to shape or remove dead canes.
- Fertilize all established plants with new growth using a 5-10-5 or similar fertilizer.
- Fertilize trees and shrubs.
- As weeds begin to actively grow, spray with weed control according to container instructions.
- Apply borer control only if you find evidence of borers and you did not apply in March.
- Spread out mulch mounds around perennials and roses.
- Remove tree wrap if you haven't already, as it's an excellent incubation area for insects and diseases.

Early May

- Plant these outdoors: broccoli, peas, beets, Brussels sprouts, carrots, collards, kale, radishes, spinach, tomatoes with Wall o' Water only, sage, pansies, all potted perennials, summer flowering bulbs. Make sure to 'harden' (slowly acclimate) the plants before planting them in the ground.
- Prune roses back to approximately 1-2 feet above the ground or to live wood. Don't prune climbers except to shape or remove dead canes.

Mid-May

- Start these seeds outdoors: corn, snap beans, mustard, pumpkin, summer & winter squash.
- Plant these outdoors: anything already listed in early May, plus lemon balm, New Zealand and Malabar spinach, all herbs, annual flowers, dahlia tubers, gladiola corms, and all potted perennials (hardened off).

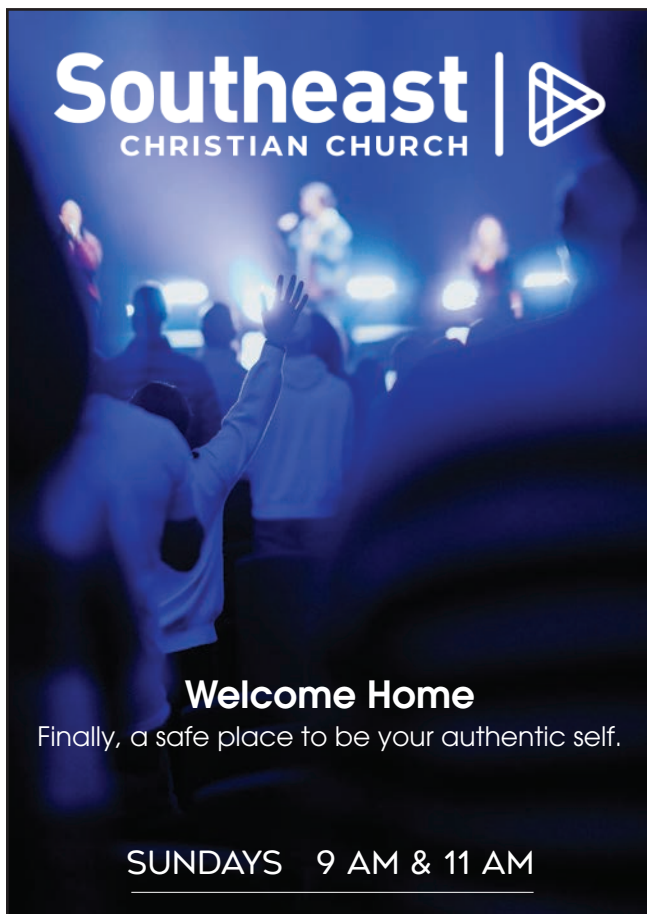

Late May

- Plant these outdoors: anything already listed in early and mid-May, plus cucumbers, pumpkins, summer & winter squash, basil, lima beans, peppers, corn, and tomatoes.
